Online Business Program

Provides students and graduates with non-business degrees the business knowledge to pursue their career

By now you should all be familiar with K-Lo's Papist Army Rebellion at Notre Dame, where wingnuts are mad that President Obama — whose morning routine includes having a MASSIVE partial-birth abortion between potty and tooth-brushing time — will be the University's commencement speaker. A Wonkette operative in South Bend writes: "How are you not writing about the Abortion Plane?! I'm here at Notre Dame, future speaking site of President Obama (unless he wises up and makes a run for it), and the ever-awesome Center For Bioethical Reform has hired a plane to circle over campus over the last few days, trailing a giant fetus poster." And in a later e-mail the operative adds, "They brought baby carriages and fake blood, too!" But the best part here is a letter the Center for Bioethical Reform sent in response to one student who had asked them to maybe stop being so annoying. It includes such gems as, "The sewers of South Bend are literally running red with the blood of Notre Dame's children." LITERALLY.

We're including Greg Cunningham's phone number because he is probably a good target for prank calls. If you cannot read this full letter, we have bolded some "fun" sentences.

Dear [REDACTED]

Thank you for writing. As someone about to graduate from Notre Dame, you say you "don't think it is fair to have your home bombarded with disgusting [and disturbing] images." Come now,

SCANDAL - Secrets of Madoff

[REDACTED]: If these babies were just blobs of tissue, would you be so distressed at these pictures? How could the images be “disgusting” unless abortion is “disgusting?” And if you think abortion photos are “disturbing” who aren’t you more disturbed by abortion itself? Why do you care more about your own “comfort” than you care about the survival of the little children who are being slaughtered? Is that what the priests taught you at Notre Dame; that your comfort is more important than someone else’s life?

You admit that the “majority” of Notre Dame students voted for Mr. Obama. That means they must not be allowed to graduate in comfort. No one should be allowed to become comfortable with baby killing. Many of your classmates have had abortions and many more will have them in the future. Some of these students, at least those with functioning consciences, could be talked into saving their babies if they were forced to look at what abortion is and does. We know that from our extensive experience with these pictures. You can read their testimonials for yourself at www.abortionNO.org. These students need truth more than they need comfort. If pro-abortion students are going to revel in the presence of this serial-killer president, they need to squirm in the presence of the babies he is killing. Most abortion supporters want to be able to kill babies and have the evidence swept under the carpet. No more, [REDACTED]. It is only fair that pro- abortion students be forced to look at the carnage their votes are making possible. Then we will see if they are still so “excited,” as you say, to have Mr. Obama address them.

You say Mr. Obama is coming to honor you. We are going to make your class look at the hidden reality for which he stands and then you can all better decide how much of an honor his presence actually confers on you and your classmates. You say he is not coming to discuss abortion. That is correct but he IS coming to signal that abortion should be of little concern to Catholics. We intend to forcefully rebut that contention, not with arguments, but with pictures. You find it “disrespectful” that we would force our “extremist” message on your class, but as I asked above, how could an abortion photo be “extreme” unless abortion is “extreme?” We find it disrespectful to butcher babies. If you think the use of the term “butcher” is an exaggeration, then why do you find abortion photos so “upsetting,” to use your term?

We want your family and the family of every graduating senior in Joyce Center to have these sickening pictures gaging them as they applaud the man who glorifies this carnage. Our avowed purpose is to respectfully, lawfully, ruin this ceremony; not to be vindictive but to force people to stop acting as though everything is normal at Notre Dame. It is not normal for a Catholic institution to honor a man who supports infanticide. The sewers of South Bend are literally running red with the blood of Notre Dame's children. We are going to figuratively pry open the manhole covers and force the entire university community to smell the stench of death. No more business as usual. I assure you that by the time the Class of 2009 has received their diplomas, both "town and gown" will be more bothered by abortion than they ever dreamed possible. Every time they look at that diploma, framed on their wall, we want them to see a dead baby. Then perhaps they will take this issue as seriously as the graduate of a famous Catholic university is obligated to take it.

Again, the blood running through the sewers is literal, but they are only going to pretend to open the sewers up to let everyone smell the dead babies everywhere. And that's a cop-out.

Is that what the priests taught you at Notre Dame; that your comfort is more important than someone else's life?

Well, that and that we had a little secret we mustn't talk about with anyone else.

BigIrish says at 5:09 pm, April 30th, 2009

My favorite part is that the letter closes with 'Lord Bless'.

JMP says at 5:10 pm, April 30th, 2009

Texan Bulldoggette says at 5:12 pm, April 30th, 2009

"Many of your classmates have had abortions and many more will have them in the future." Yeah, that's why we would like to keep them, you know, SAFE.

Sassette says at 5:12 pm, April 30th, 2009

Our avowed purpose is to respectfully, lawfully, ruin this ceremony;

I'm not sure it's possible to "respectfully" ruin a ceremony of any kind. Also I think Notre Dame students would find just about any "clump of tissue" - like say, a severed limb - disturbing on a huge banner flying over their graduation. But thanks for playing, wingnuts.

iwillsavethispatient says at 5:12 pm, April 30th, 2009

I'm confused. Did these "dead babies" get to go to heaven, or are they permanently stuck in limbo?

Also, can we assume South Bend-ians are ever so slight constipated, given the makeup of their sewers?

Bruno says at 5:13 pm, April 30th, 2009

Wait, does anyone get an honorary PhD out of this?

I don't like looking at pictures of the insides of porta-johns, either, especially when trailed by airplanes, but that doesn't mean that pooping is morally repugnant.

Why is this guy running around smelling sewers? Looks like a job for Super TruckNutz!

ChernobylSoup says at 5:15 pm, April 30th, 2009

Ahh, abortion protests. I forgot how fun they were since they disappeared over the last 8 years (even though actual abortions did not). The fake blood, the threats, the shootings, the bombings. Good times. This is exactly what baby Jesus was talking about during the sermon on the mount.

jasper f. krone says at 5:16 pm, April 30th, 2009

I don't think I've ever been "gaged" by a picture while I applaud.

slappypaddy says at 5:16 pm, April 30th, 2009

When I kill babies, I prefer to have the evidence mopped up. Sweeping it under the carpet gets to smelling really bad after a few days, and always leaves stains that won't come out no matter how hard I scrub. Out, damn spot!

FamilyLost says at 5:16 pm, April 30th, 2009

I hope they attempt to do a fly-over the graduation while BO is speaking. The carnage Gregggy speaks of may be his own. The Secret Service doesn't much like unapproved fly-overs, also.

V572625694 says at 5:17 pm, April 30th, 2009

You can't kid me: they don't have sewers in South Bend. It's in fucking Indiana, for fuck's sake. He must have meant to say the roadside ditches are literally running red with the blood of aborted Notre Dame students, or whatever the fuck he said. This so-called Center for Bio Ethical Reform is in the dreary Orange County (CA) suburb of Lake Forest, so STFU about Notre Dame, you twunt!

Lemming Caution says at 5:17 pm, April 30th, 2009

in the meantime, one of my favorite anti-abortion arguments is, re: their gross imagery, if these babies were just blobs of tissue, would you be so distressed at these pictures?

I once saw about 15 seconds of footage of a face lift, and I nearly threw up. I never watched televised surgeries for a reason. I would be disgusted if someone flew over repeatedly with a graphic image of an appendectomy, and it's not because I want to save the poor little appendix.

another favorite part of the letter: respectfully, lawfully, ruin this ceremony how does one respectfully ruin a graduation ceremony?

Sassette: damn, got in ahead of me on that "respectfully" thing.

PerhapsSo says at 5:19 pm, April 30th, 2009

I've had just about enough of these motherfucking abortions on this motherfucking plane!

elector8 says at 5:19 pm, April 30th, 2009

I totally understand now: when I get grossed out at pictures of surgical procedures, like tumors getting removed, it is because deep down I understand that those procedures are MORALLY WRONG.

My campaign starts now: outlaw all gross medical procedures! God gave you that tumor for a reason, LOVE IT!

StarkRavingMan says at 5:20 pm, April 30th, 2009

Notre Dame students! There's still time to take advantage of the 50 Percent Off sale at Uncle Guido's Fetabortorium in beautiful downtown South Bend! Any procedures completed before we close the doors on Friday qualify for the discount AND a coupon good for similar savings for a friend! Graduating seniors – now's the time to erase any evidence of that little indiscretion after the Christmas kegger. Start your post-graduate life as pure as the pope! Offer void where prohibited.

charlesdegoal says at 5:20 pm, April 30th, 2009

Hasn't this issue been settled? Isn't it legal to have/perform an abortion in the United States. Are these people saying that the President should not uphold the law? What a crock of shit!

irishdem says at 5:21 pm, April 30th, 2009

Most girls at ND don't even have access to abortion. The nearest clinic is in the scary part of the ghetto, none of the nearby (catholic-affiliated) hospitals provide them, and the effing campus pharmacy won't even fill birth control scrips for medical reasons. My roommate freshman year had her baby, in part because she was forced into the decision by lack of options... so I highly doubt that many of this graduating students classmates have had abortions, Gregg.

It is amazing how many non-ND graduates have taken to trying to make a private ceremony a public issues. Obama's views on social justice, the death penalty, his opposition to pre-emptive war (which violated Catholic just war doctrine) are all far more in line with Catholicism than his predecessor. I'm a Democrat precisely because I'm a Catholic. If Obama cannot get an ND degree because he's prochoice, I suppose my entire group of girlfriends from college will have to send back our degrees.

Back in my Catholic school days in the late 1990s they showed us those dead fetus pictures and the "scary equipment" that was used (although I've seen more terrifying things at the dentist). At the same time I knew girls who threw themselves down the stairs to cause a miscarriage. You know what? I ended up pro-choice and completely immune to the "gross out" factor of dead fetuses. I don't even notice them anymore.

Custerwolf says at 5:38 pm, April 30th, 2009

I'd call that forced. She loves her kid now and thankfully got the support from her parents to finish college and get a great job, but if there had been better pro-choice services on and off campus, she may have been able to truly weigh all her options.

I have a copy of the graduation program. It includes the following insert:

WANT TO KNOW WHAT'S REALLY GROSS
 During an hours swim at a public pool you will ingest 1/12 liters of urine.
 In an average day your hands will have come into indirect contact with 15 penises
 (touching door handles etc.)
 An average person's yearly fast food intake will contain 12 pubic hairs.
 In a year you will have swallowed 14 insects - while you slept!
 Annually you will shake hands with 11 women who have recently masturbated and failed to wash their hands.
 Annually you will shake hands with 6 men who have recently masturbated and failed to wash their hands.
 In a lifetime 22 workmen will have examined the contents of your dirty linen basket.
 At an average wedding reception you have a 1/100 chance of getting a cold sore from one of the guests.
 Daily you will breath in 1 liter of other peoples' anal gases.

These guys used to show up at the University of Florida once a year or so. And then the counter protest. Almost as much fun as the Gators for Israel/Nakba '48 scream-offs.

One memorable year they had the genocide wagon, which compared aborted blastocysts to persecuted ethnic groups. They had the same smug attitude as the writer of this letter, as if they had shocked us out of our complacency about abortion. Trouble was, I, and many others like me, weren't complacent about abortion, we were satisfied at its legality. They mistook our sneering contempt for looks of appalled disgust and horror.

Funny how when you saw all those fat old white men hunkered 'round Dumbya as he signed the anti-partial-birth-abortion law a couple years ago there wasn't ONE woman present? And as a nurse, I inform folks that 60-80% of fertilized ova/ developing embryos are spontaneously 'aborted' and washed out with a woman's regular menstrual flow because they don't get implanted in the uterus for one reason or another (it's true you can look it up)... that usually leaves 'em speechless. Custerwolf: OMG you are just too freakin' funny...I check in to this wonkette thingy at least once a day just to see what you've got to say (OK some of the other guys/gals here are pretty damn sharp too!)

Custerwolf: "lighten up" is probably good advise, but your point of view gets lost in your untoward language. do you believe you are adding emphasis or being cute? i assure you, you are accomplishing neither. like many i occasionally slip into profanity, but is it a good idea to publish this type of comment on the web? even comedians are coming to realize that it is simply not a good way to make a point. perhaps no one cares about this anymore and i should just "lighten up", but i think words do matter and more civilized language would help in creating a more civilized world.
