

CBR COMMUNIQUE

CBR Educates NAACP Members about Black Genocide

THE CENTER FOR BIO-ETHICAL REFORM (CBR) and Pastor Clenard Childress completed a weeklong outreach to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) during its July 11-16 centennial national convention in New York City. Due to the NAACP's unwillingness to substantively address abortion, this was an important educational opportunity.

CBR's truck and 13x6-foot and 3x4-foot hand-held signs exposed NAACP delegates to the reality of black genocide and to the radical positions of America's pro-infanticide President Barack Obama. The signs included Obama Awareness signs and Obama's "Choice" signs, as well as our Genocide Awareness Project signs which compare abortion to lynchings of black people and other genocidal atrocities.

CBR Midwest Director Mark Harrington offered pertinent facts underlying our rationale for being outside the convention:

With 33 percent of all abortions performed on black women—that is black genocide. With over half of all pregnancies to black women ending in abortion—that is black genocide. When African-Americans make up 13 percent of the population but continue to kill babies at such an astounding rate, it is past time to confront the leadership of the NAACP in their complicity in black genocide.

Pastor Clenard Childress, Founder of BlackGenocide.Com, Director of LEARN Northeast, Pastor of New Calvary Baptist Church, and CBR board member, brought his church members to volunteer outside the NAACP convention. He gave us his report on the outreach:

Engaging the delegates of the NAACP in NYC for four days was probably the most productive thing we have done this year to stop black genocide. The dialogue went remarkably well and I know many were enlightened for the first time on the decimation of the black community by abortion.

A CBS video covering the 100th NAACP convention is featured on the NAACP website (<http://www.naacp.org/news/index.htm>). The video shows multiple graphic images of blacks being beaten and lynched. This demonstrates once again that the NAACP uses graphic imagery to make their case that racism is wrong; we hope and pray that more NAACP members will recognize that our abortion photos and signs are needed to wake up Americans to the genocide of preborn children.

The CBS video also contains an interesting clip of President Obama speaking to a black congregation on the reporter phrased as “black issues.” Obama stated, “Any fool can have a child. That doesn’t make you a father. It’s the courage to raise the child that makes you a father.” Mr. President, how about the courage to give the child a birth day and not an abortion day?

Benjamin Todd Jealous, the new NAACP president, answered a challenge regarding the relevance of the NAACP today since blacks received full civil rights in the 1960’s. Mr. Jealous told the CBS reporter that he is part of “the most murdered generation in our country,” and he noted other concerns the NAACP should now address, “I think it’s hard sometimes for people who remember when there was a big iconic enemy like Jim Crow. That icon is broken into a whole bunch of different villains: predatory lending [towards minorities], over-incarceration, schools that are falling apart.” Perhaps after seeing our signs with abortion photos next to photos of lynched black men, Mr. Jealous will understand that “the most murdered generation” includes preborn black children. Hopefully a new NAACP vision will include ending black genocide in the womb. To quote Pastor Childress, “The most dangerous place for an African American to be is in the womb of their African American mother.”

In a May 12, 2009 press release from LEARN Northeast, Pastor Childress made an additional startling statement:

Despite the predictable ramifications of electing the most pro-abortion president in our nation’s history, Rev. Childress pointed out that the election of Barack Obama would be the best thing to end Black Genocide. ‘We now have a face to put on Black Genocide.’

The latest national survey by the Pew Research Center for the People & the Press, conducted March 31 - April 21 among 1,521 adults, finds President Barack Obama’s abortion advocacy could be sparking a shift to the pro-life side of the abortion debate. The Pew Poll found 46 percent of Americans say abortion should be legal in most cases (28 percent) or all cases (18 percent) and 44 percent of Americans believe that abortion should be illegal in most (28 percent) or all cases (16 percent). That two-point margin in favor of abortion is the lowest margin since 1995, as Pew, and other polling firms, have been asking the same polling question of Americans across the country every year. Or said another way, support for legal abortions has dropped to its lowest level in 15 years. (<http://www.christiannewswire.com/news/7159910349.html>)

You can read more from Pastor Childress on black genocide at BlackGenocide.org. On the home page there is a link to a superb article he wrote for The Washington Times that details President Obama’s complicity in black genocide: <http://www.washingtontimes.com/news/2009/jul/24/a-catastrophe-largely-self-imposed>. We are grateful and honored to partner with Pastor Childress, a godly Pastor and rare pro-life leader. Please keep him in your prayers.

Carhart, Hern and Tiller: Lies, Lies, and More Lies

Gregg Cunningham's July 7 Blog

Dear Andrew,

In the British radio interview to which you linked me (http://www.bbc.co.uk/worldservice/programmes/2009/07/090701_outlook_abortiondoctor.shtml) "Dr." Carhart's worst case justification for late-term abortion is anencephaly. He says these children will die at or immediately following birth. He is a liar. The New York Times, "The First Ache," February 10, 2008, reported that a Swedish neuroscientist named Bjorn Merker videotaped a group of five children with anencephaly (the upper hemispheres of the brain are missing) enjoying a trip to Disney World.

The youngsters, ages 1 to 5, are shown smiling, laughing, fussing, crying; they appear alert and aware of what is going on around them. Yet each of these children was born essentially without a cerebral cortex. The condition is called hydranencephaly [a condition for which "Dr." Tiller would have killed in a heartbeat, so to speak] in which the brain stem is preserved but the upper hemispheres are largely missing and replaced by fluid. Merker (who has held positions at universities in Sweden and the United States but is currently unaffiliated) became interested in these children as the living embodiment of a scientific puzzle: where consciousness originates. He joined an online self-help group for the parents of children with hydranencephaly and read through thousands of e-mail messages, saving many that described incidents in which the children seemed to demonstrate awareness.

"Dr." Carhart also justifies late-term abortion with the argument that they are necessary to save the lives of mothers with complicated pregnancies. But if his purpose is to save the mother, why is he killing the baby? These are post-viability babies who could survive outside the womb. He could simply induce labor without first killing the baby. That would save the mother and the baby. But he doesn't do that because his purpose, and that of the mother, is to kill the child.

Sadly, the interviewer was lobbing softballs at "Dr." Carhart instead of calling him on his brazen lies. The free press is dead in the U.K. and the U.S. and just about everywhere else. Long live the state-run media.
