Why Conventions?

Our supporters might reasonably ask, “Why are you reserving exhibit booths at conventions?” We exhibit prenatal videos and photo displays outside supportive churches and on university campuses, but in the past two years, we have found that reserving exhibit booths at conventions helps us educate and recruit certain groups of people with whom we wish to collaborate. We focus on homeschool conventions to reach children and young people before the culture lies to them. Parents appreciate our exhibit filled with prenatal science videos and photos. Some of these conventions have thousands of registrants. We also participate in Christian medical and dental conventions with the intent of recruiting these professionals to join us in educating their patients, and the culture. A third type of conventions are those geared to Christians of various kinds. As we move forward, our plan is to be at teacher conventions with prenatal science exhibits.

Many of these organizations who hold conventions are led by busy individuals with whom it is difficult to schedule meetings so we politely “ambush” them at carefully selected conventions.

A professor recently wrote that schools are not providing education about prenatal science, so we can fill that gap by attending conferences and conventions at which we recruit students interested in sponsoring our prenatal exhibits.

University of Hawaii Says Aloha Only to Pro-Aborts

University of Hawaii provided a large tent for 15 pro-abortion campus groups to promote abortion at the University of Hawaii Commons Building on April 14. CBR-Hawaii Director Steve Holck teamed up with TP-USA Hawaii Chair Teagan Miley to offer truthful prenatal information and alternatives to abortion through Aloha Pregnancy Care and Counseling Centers (APCCC). APCCC was founded 28 years ago by Steve Holck in the old Planned Parenthood offices. Thousands of babies have been saved, and thousands of moms and dads have been saved with the gospel message. The University would not provide space for the pro-life group under the tent, so Mr. Holck moved their table to the pathway next to the tent. The pro-aborts' tent was hot and sweaty, while the pro-life table was cool under a big tree! More people came up to the pro-life table than would have gone under the tent! Mr. Holck, always friendly, reported: "I invited all the pro-aborts to our AlohaPregnancy.com luncheon this Saturday near the University! Some said they would come." Who knows what God will do as a result?

Notes from Supporters

"Thanks for all that you do for the little ones." SB

"I want to thank all of you so much for the time and effort that you invest in the work of CBR. Only eternity will fully reveal the impact that you have made in so many ways. God bless you all." JD

Dutch Centre for Bio-Ethical Reform Showing and Telling Truth

The staff and board of the Dutch Centre for Bio-Ethical Reform is expanding their outreach. In addition to public outreaches, they are using Facebook to display prenatal photos and pose thoughtful questions. We like their January 30 Facebook post which translates to read: We often hear: "A fetus is not a person because it is in the body of a woman." But location doesn't determine your humanity. If location doesn't matter after birth, why does it matter before birth?

Three members of Dutch CBR joined CBR-Florida and Canadian CBR for a CBR photo display tour of five universities. Canadian CBR brings a huge group of volunteers and staff for these annual campus tours. CBR has been a leader in the pro-life movement worldwide as we have recruited and trained people to lead international CBR affiliates. It is an encouragement to see their growth and continued partnership.

At Florida International University, volunteer Tabitha reported: "I saw a guy looking at our photos, so I asked him what he thought. He said that after looking at abortion photos he is now fully pro-life and he kept saying 'that's so nasty.'" Prenatal science photos and abortion photos continue to open hearts and change minds, even for some people who thought abortion was a settled issue.

Capital Campaign Update

The CBR Capital Campaign goal of $250,000 continues as we raise funds to purchase a second prenatal science exhibit of 20 seven-foot column signs with award-winning content, 20 A-frame signs, plus two Ford Transit trucks to transport the exhibit. Opportunities are arising for the East Coast and the West Coast, so it is apparent that we need a second exhibit. Thus far, through your generosity we have raised $21,950.00.

Your prayers and support are deeply appreciated. Jesus gave His life for us; let's give our lives to Him.
